

Chattanooga High's Main Entrance in Wyatt Hall.

The SCHOOL

Flag being lowered in front of west wing.

Students exit from Trimble Hall, homeward bound.

Chattanooga High School, in its sixty-third year since the first class was graduated, has developed year after year into a madern, up-to-date, outstanding educational institution. As it now stands with Wyatt, McDonald, and Trimble Halls, and the new concrete stadium, Chattanooga High is a far cry from the frame building on College Hill where the school first opened its doors for the betterment and training of future leaders over sixty years ago.

In 1896 the original building was destroyed by fire, after which classes were held at the University building. A year later a lot was purchased where Dickinson Junior High now stands, and the class of 1906 became the first to graduate from the East Eighth Street school. Increasing growth of the student body again changed the location, and we left East Eighth Street to assume our present position.

TRAINING for OFFENSE

Within the course of a few hours on December 8, 1941, the R. O. T. C. began to train leaders for the United States Army, in which lies the hope of defeating the Axis. In the past when our nation was engrassed in peace conferences and isolationism the R. O. T. C. was not recognized for its worth. However, the cadet training has come to its own and will continue to do its best to preserve democracy. With changes in methods of fighting, defensive as well as offensive, instruction of the cadets has been altered to meet the new forms of warfare. Training in extended order has been supplemented with more work in the field and the class

While the editorial staff is planning the book the business staff is busy selling ads and subscriptions to make its publication possible

Almost any afternoon in the week some of this staff may be seen working from store to store selling ads. At school they advertise for subscriptions by verses, which appear from time to time with the Student Council announcements

Others helping to raise money for the Dynama's publication are the candy-sellers; each day during the lunch periods they run a confectionery stand in the back of the cafeteria

These financiers add to their income by sponsoring Stunt. Nite, one of the big events of the year Usually one of the features of this program is the announcement of the results of our popularity contest.

By playing for the school in chapel programs and other entertainments, the students in the orchestra add to the interest of these programs and at the same time learn to be poised before an audience It is customary for this group to furnish the music for May Day. This year for the first time May Day was held out doors in the stadium, thus making enough room to accommodate a "full-piece orchestra"

in the spring of the year the orchestra accepted invitations to play for the Kosmos Women's Club and for the vocalists for the Spring concert

Another interesting division of the music depart ment is the Girls' Glee Club. Each year the club ands some of its members to participate in the annual Spring Concert, which is given at the Memoria Auditorium by the School Glee Club of the Chatta nooga district. Our Glee Club was again represented by a trio sent to Johnson City to participate in the East Tennessee Vocal Competition Festival

Besides autside entertaining, these singers are also active on school programs. In Stunt Nite the club contributes to the musical acts, and it has become a tradition for the members to sing at Commenciment

Made up of commissioned officers of Chattanooga High School's R. O. T. C. unit, this club is purely a recreational and social one: its sole mi tary connection is its membership rol

Each year the Officers sponsor two donces. The first a formal dance, is open to the entire student body; the second, given in the spring, is usually informal. Other ocial activities include an outing and a progressive dinner for their sponsors

Besides being socialities, these officers ire also men of brawn. This is shown by their records in competitive football and basketball games, track meets and other tests with C. H. S.'s Sergeants Club, as well as the Officers' Club of Central High School

SERGEANTS' CLUB

Tough Guys

The Sergeants' Club is made up of the highest ranking non-commissioned of ficers of C. H. S.'s R. O. T. C. In the club, these "non-coms" gain valual experience which helps prepare them to next year's work as officers; aside from this, their time is taken up with various social and athletic functions.

During the year the members escort their dates to their dance, weiner roast picnics, and other outings. These activities have become annual events on the school's recreational calendar and are eagerly anticipated by all those involved

The Sergeants are also active in the field of athletics, baseball being one of their favorite sports. They campete with both the Officers' and Corporals' Cuba during the season

At club meetings the members discuss military problems and hear occasional lectures. Like the other military clubs they also plan dances and outings, and participate in recreational sports

This year they particularly distinguished themselves by winning every game of basketball they played agains the Sergeants' and Officers' Clubs.

Many salities have been ren on the gration.

Unit 1 they sea cas of that... Yet this year one of the things yet to be conceived struck the Syracuse University coach's mind. He reversed his center and thereby began one of the strangest events in football

It seems that this coach's idea worked pretty well. An added feature and ground gaining factor, it provided for more accurate passing of the ball to the backfield and better blocking opportunitie for the center. Also it gave the apposing team a feeling of uncertainty as to just what would hap pen next.

Me I there was a gent and discovered to the control of the City High's football team. He decided to try the phenomenal idea on his team which had few reserves

An amozed crowd saw this crazy set-up almost defeat the Bradley Bears, one of the strongest teams in surrounding territory. However, some smart coach set up a five-man defensive line which hampered the effectiveness of the turned around center.

The committee on football rules did not like this idea, and finally outlawed this strange formation

For the benefit of those girls interested in sports, the Athletic Department offers various opportunities along this line. Under the supervision of Miss Sadie Magill and the gym captains, the work was carried on very successfully

There are athletic clubs, one for the sephomore girls and one for the junior and senior girls. At the club meetings, and in gym classes, these athletes play such games as basketball, volleyball, and soccer

Each class competes for a prize for the winning basketball and valley ball teams. Mary Louise Thrasher's class won the valley ball tournament and Betty Jone Underwood's girls got the basketball prize.

Each year two big days stand out for the gym classes on their calendar for the year. One is Parents' Day and the other is the annual City-Central Drill

On October 29, Parents' Day held attention as hundreds of students passed before parents and friends alike For the first time in its long history, the location was changed from the dusty bowl in the rear of the school to the new stadium field

At this time, the gym captains presented their sponsors, and, in turn, R. O. T. C. sponsors for the year were formally introduced. Passing in review before several judges, the girls' gym classes competed for prizes to be awarded to two best groups participating in the drill. The drill squad,

In maroon and white, spelled out C. H. S., after which the R. O. T. C. unit, two battalions strong, passed in review in military fashion

This year's City-Central drill, presented at the halves of the annual gridiron classic between the two rival schools, was well up to the events of the day. Taking its cue from a patriotic standpoint, the girls' gym classes marched onto the field and formed a "V" signifying victory. Following this formation a large football, decorated with the colors of both schools, was wheeled out from which a City co-ed and a Central cadet emerged, showing a feeling of good-will between the schools

ORPHANS' HARVEST

Hay, hay-seeds, and hay fever featured the an nual Senior Harvest Festival, a howling success despite red noses and violent sneezes. But the most remembered event of the first semester for every senior was at the Orphans' Party, which proved the best possible way to begin Christmas Holidays

Feeling a little self-conscious with their new children, "Papa and Mamo Senior" paraded their charges about the building, showing faculty and other students (especially the faculty) how children should be handled. With gifts, furnished by the class, and "parents," mother and father tried to make their already ecstatically happy children still happier, but the adopters seemed to enjoy the toys and party almost more than the adoptees. Watching every facial expression, listening for the slightest complaint, proud parents would have spoiled their children completely had they been with them longer than two hours

PARTY and FESTIVAL

High spot of the party was Santa Clau ' dramatic and frightening entry on a motorcycle. Some arphans cried, some laughed, and part of the faculty turned gray

Cries of "Where's Mary's present?" and "Johnny didn't get his," were heard as Santa Claus Chare. Rogers presented the children with the gifts presented mountain high under the twenty-foot tree. Sopho mores and Juniors were a little envious of the seniors but remembering that they would have their chance when they "grew up", the underclassmen accepted their fate and enjoyed the party as much as the seniors

Earlier in the semester, the "big-shots" entertained themselves and many other students with the Harvest Festival barn dance. Even the cornstalks and groups of "hicks" seated about, failed to dampen the general celebration by Daisy Mae and Little Abner, who carried jugs and smaked empty pipes

As the pictures on this page show, the seniors had a fine time the first half of their last year and gave the rest of the school some pleasure also. In fact the upper-crust proved that it could break down and enjoy Itself just as much as the lower-half

The student who's ever in earnest,

Who is proud of the words, "Well done,"

Who sees in his toil the path ahead

Till the summit is finally won,

Delights in completion of his tasks,

And sees in each finished day

The image of days which he will face

Till that memorable hour in May.

He admits that his school day is laden

With trials and with burdensome care,

But he knows that his work is worth doing—

Abounding in joy, unawarel

He who is sincerely eager,

Who knows that each eventful day

Is blest by the work he produces,

Work not to be measured in pay -

Is graced with the title of "Scholar,"

Earns even the homage of kings;

His days are complete and resplendent,

Delighting in scholarly things!

Class History

In the fall of 1939 it started. Four hundred Sophomores, the present Senior Class, crept up that long flight of steps into the main entrance of their home for the coming three years; and that home is Chattanooga High School. Shyly, timidly, we took in our new surroundings, a formidable element of which was the class of confident Seniors. After a few days of adjustment we showed both the Seniors and the teachers that this was no ordinary class.

Shortly after our induction, we assembled in the chapel to elect class officers. The office of president proved a close race between Tom Caldwell and Bill Fuller, with Tam in the lead. Bill was made vice-president; Jessie Mason, secretary; and Robert Myers, treasurer. Mrs. Elizabeth Dalton was appointed class sponsor.

In our first year we led the whole school in ticket selling for the annual City-Central game. Our achievement proved a talisman to High School, for City not only defeated Central but also came out tops in the city-wide run-off for champions.

The most enjoyable social event of our Sophomore year was the skating party n sat Warni Pik Andri 1 , , from the transport of tape, There, were and it that the property more as the stand and to strengthen old friendships.

September, 1940, found us again ascending the steps of C. H. S. This time we looked forward to seeing former classmates and teachers. As we visited from door to door, we realized how glad we were to get back.

In our Junior year, our former president, Tom Caldwell, was elected to succeed himself. Anita Hallmark won the vice-presidency; Kathryn Forrester, the secretaryship; while Frank Fuller was elected warder of the purse. We were sorry to lose Mrs. Dolton, who had so capably served as class sponsor, but were fortunate in inducing Mrs. Lois Price to become her successor, and Mrs. Price steered us through our remaining stay at High School,

The highlight of the social activities for the year, the Junior play, Seventeen, was a howling success, due both to the excellent directing of Mr. Charles B. Watts and the well-selected cast.

On one eventful day Dr. Annetta Trimble announced that seven Juniors had been elected to the National Honor Society. The next few minutes, filled with hope eternal, were breath-taking. That year the Maroon and White was High School's pride. Robert Norris, editorin-chief, and Robert Myers, business manager, were supported by a capable staff with Mrs. Roy Felts and Mr. Charles Thomasson as sponsors

The year was climaxed by the Junior-Senior party, which was both an artistic and a social success, and which was greatly enjoyed by members of both classes

A highlight of the year was the Times' five mile race in which C. H. S.'s only entry—Billy Carroll, dashed into first place.

Ed West led the football team through a season of courageous playing against extreme odds. Despite no winning games in the city, two of the team, West and Som Fall season closed, our boys tied with Central for first place in the City and were runners-up in the district meets. Sam Ray, captain, was again on the mythical All-City five; Fred Pardue placed on the second team. As usual, the junior basketball team won the district meet.

The most enjoyed chapel program of the year was a comedy produced by the Masquers' Club entitled, "And the Light Went Out." "Dr." Graham Betts in his Impersonation of a French showman was supported by a capable cast made up of Arabin Georgian Albert Elix Devi Alexanter, Edward Microbia Birty Jan. If we, the class of 42, have achieved, and we believe we have, then much of our success is due to our capable spansors, Mrs. Price and Mrs. Dalton, who have happened as through a first air a tradition. As we felt hungry, Bill and I dropped into the Hartman Coffee Shoppe to grab a bite to eat. There we saw Robert Denham, who is campaigning for the position of justice of the peace, supported by his loyal henchmen John Hampton, Fred Martin, Ed Marris, Joe Spector, and Louis Hudson and to be confused with the former Louise Hudson, now Mrs. J.
